New modern scoreboard unveiled at Centre 2000 arena

On Dec. 11 work crews removed the decades-old arena scoreboard from Centre 2000 and replaced it with a modern LED digital display board.

According to Parks and Recreation Officer Dee-Enna Dube, the new scoreboard is larger at 12-feet-by-6-feet, and allows more functionality because it can display more player and game information.

“The new scoreboard is wider, and that allows us to display shots on goal and the player’s name for penalties. It will take our hockey community well into the future,” said Dube.

Constructed by Nevco, a leading North American scoreboard manufacturer, the new scoreboard cost $16,000, plus tax, and is being paid for with an Ontario Community and Culture grant.
